CHAPTER CXLVIII.

A SUPPLEMENT

To the act, entitled "An act for directing the mode of distributing the donation lands promised to the troops of this commonwealth."

WHEREAS by the act to which this a supplement, the Surveyor General was directed to survey into lots of different dimensions, lands given to the officers and soldiers of the Pennsylvania line for their services during the revolutionary war, certain unappropriated lands lying north and west of the rivers Allegheny and Ohio. And whereas in pursuance of the provisions of the law, ten districts of donation lands were laid off, surveyed and returned into the Surveyor General's office, designated and known by ten separate drafts all of which remain on record, and patents in pursuance of those surveys have been issued to persons entitled to them, according to their respective numbers as marked in each district and represented by the marks on the corners of lots, and numbered on the several drafts of each district. And whereas great difficulty exists in ascertaining the respective tracts, in consequence of the obliteration of the marks on the corner trees from a variety of causes, either by lapse of time, the burning of the woods, or the improper conduct of persons
