Lands so acquired may be designated by the associations as State emergency relief farms. The associations may purchase, repair, maintain, and erect such buildings or other improvements on lands so acquired as may be deemed necessary for the proper utilization, maintenance, and protection of such lands or for farm purposes as hereinafter provided. The associations may purchase land from which the ownership of minerals, oil, or gas, and the right to mine and drill for or remove the same, have been excepted, or from which water rights or timber rights or other rights have been excepted or reserved: Provided, That such exceptions or reservations will not interfere with the proper use of the land for which it was acquired.

Section 2. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, and in addition to the borrowing powers already enjoyed, such associations may borrow money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, or any other department or agency now or hereafter created by the Federal Government, and issue notes, bonds, and other evidences of indebtedness therefor, and give security, in the form of mortgage or otherwise, for the payment thereof.

Section 3. Division and Preparation of Tracts.—The associations may survey and mark off the lands so purchased into plots of tillable land and wood lots with ready access to existing public roads. Wherever the same is required, the associations may build or repair a dwelling house and a barn and other conveniences on each of said plots, and dig or drill a well thereon: Provided, That the cost of no single plot, together with the improvements thereon, shall exceed one thousand two hundred dollars.

Section 4. Lease of Plots.—Said plots shall be leased by the associations to the heads of unemployed families, resident in the State, who are capable of tilling the same, and who are at the time receiving aid from public sources, at a yearly rental of ten per centum of cost, to begin at such time as shall be fixed by the associations, together with a covenant that the lessee shall till the soil, keep the fences and improvements in repair, keep the buildings insured in an amount equal to their cost to the associations, and, in addition to the payment of rent, to pay the taxes.

Section 5. Supplies and Stock Furnished.—The associations may, at the request of any such lessee, furnish the necessary farm implements, seed, and fertilizers to properly cultivate and plant such plot, and may further furnish livestock to each such lessee upon request.

Section 6. Conveyances.—The rental money paid to the associations shall be credited first to the payment of interest, at a rate to be fixed by the associations not exceeding six per centum, on the unpaid balances of the actual investment by the associations in each such lessee, including the cost of the land and repairs thereof. The balance of such rent shall be credited to the principal of such cost until the whole thereof shall be paid, at which time the associations shall execute and deliver a deed conveying a fee simple title to such plot to the lessee and/or his heirs.

Section 7. Rules and Regulations.—The associations may adopt and promulgate rules and regulations covering the failure by the lessees to perform the duties required of them under this act, and such rules shall be embodied in the contract or lease and shall be binding on the lessee.

Section 8. Effective Date.—This act shall become effective immediately upon its final enactment.
